Soldiers Provide Evacuee Kids With Egg Hunt

Evacuee children at the Jerome and Rohwer Relocation Centers enjoyed $1,250 Easter Egg hunts at the respective Centers over the week end through the kindness and generosity of 2,500 Japanese-American soldiers stationed at Camp Shelby.

The soldiers, many of whom are former residents of the centers, collected the money among themselves to provide for the entertainment. In addition to 10,000 eggs, there were 1,250 pints of ice cream and supplies of candy. The hunts were sponsored by the soldiers through the cooperation of the Camp Shelby U. S. O. In appreciation for the services rendered the soldiers by the Center U. S. O. groups on visits made to them.
